COUNTY HOUSE NEEDS

Attorney W. H. Thompson Writes of the Institution.

MORE ROOM IS NECESSARY.

Hospital Nurse Needed to Look After the Many Who Have Chronic Ailments—Inmates Desire More Reading Matter.

The following letter has been received by the Bradford Argus from W. H. Thompson, Esq., concerning the needs of the Bradford county alms house and insane department at Burlington. It is an interesting letter and one that can be read with profit and instruction by all those who have the welfare of the county charges at heart. The letter was as follows:

Mr. Editor: Remembering that you have always taken a lively interest in the Bradford County Almshouse, and as your valuable paper has pointed out the way to necessary reforms and improvements, I venture to contribute a few suggestions to the public needs of this institution. Before doing so, however, allow me to testify to the very excellent way in which it is at present conducted.

Every means available is used by the Superintendent and other employees for the comfort and happiness of the inmates. Economy, care, courtesy and friendliness are never-failing characteristics of the management. What the institution lacks comes from other sources and failures.

The first need of the place is more room. The accommodations are so inadequate that no proper classification can be made between the sane and the insane—between those who are to some extent able to help themselves and those who are helpless. The law declares the aged and infirm poor are to be provided with a safe, quiet, comfortable home, but the crowded condition of the place here mixes so much bedlam in, there is little room for home comforts.

Another pressing need here is for additional help to take care of the sick. There should be a hospital nurse here. There are few, if any, here who are not ailing. The whole concern is virtually a hospital, and yet the care of these inmates is heaped on the shoulders of the over-worked management. Mainly the sick have to care for the sick, which is generally worse than the "blind leading the blind." There is more need of a hospital nurse than of a regular physician, as most of the ailments here are of chonic nature and require more toast and soup than calomel.

The public should push the County Commissioners to enlarge the buildings and employ some capable help to care for the sick and suffering. Generally the management is beyond criticism. Every advantage is utilized. We have economy without parsimony. The quality of the food is excellent and abundant; the cooking first-rate. Garden vegetables and relishes are raised on the place in excess of the demand.

There is every opportunity for people coming here to recover health—to recuperate if they could receive proper care in sickness, but this is impossible under present conditions. The time and energies of the employees now here are already overtaxed.

Still another need—and this appeals to the Christian public and the churches—is the lack of reading matter, and especially of a religous character in the institution. Many of the aged and infirm have been—and still would be—great readers if they had the material. It is not alone the imbecile and insane that are sent or come here Many sane persons come from financial necessity. Frequently people of education drift to the County House overtaken by one misfortune or another. Their chief solace is reading, and here they have leisure to pursue it. I have in my mind now a number of this character. Two may serve as examples—one an old gentleman of eighty-five years, an inmate here for over a year—the victim of an unfortunate accident, an ex-member of the House Constabulary—posted as few men are in history, politics, domestic and foreign—and still keenly interested in current events. Another an ex-soldier of both the British and American armies, having served ten years in each, under Lord Roberts Havoleck and Sir Collin Campbell in India, and under General Miles on the Plains—a man of education, culture, and world wide information. Of course these men are lost here without something to read. Everything in the shape of reading matter is seized with avidity and devoured.

The institution is a home field for missions. I should like to see some of the money sent to the savages of Africa and the Cannibal Islands of the Pacific Ocean devoted to Burlington, Pa., to purchase Sunday reading for inmates. The Sunday Herald, the Christian Advocate, the Child's Companion, and the Independent would need no Gatling guns or bayonets to secure appreciation. Some find their way here through philanthropic parties occasionally. The supply should be made permanent. A single collection a year in the Christian churches of this county would effect wonders, and perhaps do more good than the same amount sent to China.

Think of the matter, Christian brethren. Read the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians and then act—"And now abideth faith, hope and charity, these three—but the greatest of these is charity." This is the good old version—better than the new supplying the word love for charity, because charity is love materialized. Let love materialize into Sunday reading for this mission.

Sincerely,
W. H. Thompson.

BABY DIED ON TRAIN.

Passed Away Near Elmira and Taken From Its Mother.

Hardly more than a child herself and alone in a strange land, traveling to her home in Saxony, with no money, save enough for absolute necessities while enroute, Mrs. Elizabeth Sinben, aged 17 years, separated from her pretty little three-months'-old child which died Monday morning in a coach on Lackawanna train No. 2, shortly after it left Elmira while the fond and troubled mother held it in her arms. At Binghamton the coroner was called, having been telegraphed from Owego. He removed the body from the train. It was the most pathetic sight witnessed by the authorities and newspaper men of the Parlor City in many months.

Bowed with grief over the death of her baby only a few moments before, Mrs. Sinben was almost crushed when the authorities told her in a kind but firm manner that she must give it to them. She protested, but they carried it away.

Then she was told that she might remain in Binghamton for a day and witness the burial of the child.

It was then that she replied that her means were only sufficient to carry her on her journey to her young husband in Saxony, if she was uninterrupted, and that she could just catch a steamer for Germany when she would arrive in New York. The train pulled out carrying the mother with it. The body remained behind for burial. She started for the East from Cleveland, Ohio, and said that the child was perfectly well when she left that city to make the long journey.—Elmira Advertiser.

A Gruesome Exhibit.

The bones of the only man who was ever hanged in Potter county will be on exhibition at the coming county celebration in Coudersport. This somewhat gruesome yet unique relic is the property of Dr. Charles French, who has loaned the skeleton to the committee on exhibits. The bones are those of a man named Jones, who many years ago was executed there. Sometime prior to his execution the condemned man sold his body to a local physician for the purpose of dissection. It was from this doctor that Dr. French, the present owner, obtained it.

OFFICERS AT BAY.

Charles F. Marshall Created a Sensation on Saturday.

CARRIED A LARGE REVOLVER

Threatened to Shoot His Father and the Officers, and Had His Gun Pointed at His Divorced Wife—Maintains He Will Yet Kill Her.

Charles F. Marshall, proprietor of the billiard and pool room in the Mercur block, was arrested on Saturday afternoon and taken to jail by Chief of Police Miller and Constable Guy C. Hollon after he had held the officers at bay for over half an hour with a 38-calibre revolver and had threatened to shoot his former wife, Julia Watson Marshall, and his father, W. K. Marshall. The defendant was brought before Justice Orcutt and waived a hearing to court. In default of $500 bail he was committed to jail.

The affair created considerable excitement in the neighborhood, but Marshall finally yielded to his father's persuasions and gave up the weapon with which he says that he intended to shoot Mrs. Marshall. Some months ago the court granted Julia Watson Marshall a divorce from Charles F. Marshall and since that time she has been living with her two children at at the home of her parents in South Towanda. A few weeks ago Mr. Marshall was married again.

It appears that the first Mrs. Marshall was taking the children to make a call at the home of Mr. Marshall's parents on Barstow avenue. Mr. Marshall saw them going up the street and surmised that they were going to his parents' home. He followed them and was in a rage that they would be admitted when she had procured a divorce from him.

He pulled out a revolver but was overpowered by his father and brother and put out of the house. Mrs. Marshall went into a back room and as she was standing there with her back to a window, she heard a slight noise and looking over her shoulder saw Marshall aiming at her with a revolver through the window. She got out of harm's way. The police were sent for and tried to get near to Marshall to try to pacify him. Mrs. Marshall and the children got out of the house and ran to a neighbor's.

Marshall held the officers several feet away from him at the point of his revolver. He said he would bore them if they took another step and he aimed his weapon straight at the officers' heads. The officers tried to reason with him, and he finally said that if Mrs. Marshall would leave the neighborhood he would give the gun to his father. His father came back just as more men had arrived on the scene and the son let him take the weapon and made no resistance when the officers placed him under arrest. On the way down town he told the officers he meant to kill his wife yet and that he would kill himself.

Marshall was partially paralyzed some two or three years ago and has been acting queerly at times. This is the worst conduct that he has been guilty of and it will probably be determined whether it is the result of intentional crime or whether he is not responsible for his actions. A complaint was sworn out by the first Mrs. Marshall charging him with threats to kill before Justice Orcutt. Constable McCracken served the papers.

The best place to put the wood ashes is either round the plum trees or on the strawberry bed.

Irrigation presupposes the use of water, but very successful irrigation can be done with a hoe or a cultivator.

From a money point of view the young man will do better to turn his attention to agriculture rather than theology.

It has been cherry year all through the west this year, plenty for the birds as well as the good wife who wants the cherries to can.

Lightning struck the great Agricultural building at the world's fair lately, and for a time there was another state exhibit—a state of excitement.

They are trying to see if they can make profitable beef and pork way up in the north country outside of the corn belt out of millet seed, barley and roots.

Twenty good cows well cared for, ten brood sows and 200 hens is a combination which will make any ordinary mortgage look sick in a very few years.

It is but little use to meddle with purslane in the garden or field when the weather is wet. It seems to rather enjoy being pulled up so that it may turn over and take root again.

The Japs are taking lots of American canned beef. If they get hold of some of the critters which were last seen headed for the cannery it is no wonder they do not fear death.

There are about 200 business failures each week in the United States, not 5 per cent of which are farmers. Farmers do not often fail unless they get to monkeying with whisky or options or land speculations.

Australia is slowly recovering from the effects of the terrible drought which hung like a pall over the country for seven years. The sadly decimated flocks and herds are being restored, and a fair measure of prosperity has returned to the people.

The sheep owner is in luck this year so far as his wool crop is concerned. The range prices in Montana and Wyoming are close to 20 cents, nearly 5 cents higher than they have been for a long time. It means about a dollar a head income from the wool product.

The rose breasted grosbeak, or pea bird, as he is sometimes known, can have his daily fill of peas from our garden to pay him for his good work in eating the potato bug, he being the only bird, so far as we have been able to observe, which will ever touch this pest.

The discussion over the question of tuberculosis in the dairy herd and its contaminating danger to the human race is dying out. As we understand it, the question was not settled whether such contamination was possible or not, the burden of proof being that it was not.

Pedigree is a good thing in a sire, but unless it is coupled with individual excellence it is almost always a disappointment. Like will beget like, pedigree or no pedigree. Good quality without pedigree makes a lottery of breeding, while pedigree without quality is playing a shell game.

The plant breeding experts of the agricultural department have developed a new hybrid fruit—the tangelo—a cross between the tangerine orange and the pomelo or grape fruit. This hybrid is said to combine the best qualities of its parents and is likely to become of great value to growers of citrus fruits.

The wife should be entitled to the undisputed use of the egg money on the farm. Some get it, and many don't. The sensible man will encourage his wife and daughters in the poultry business and assist them to make it a reliable source of income for the women folks. An income of $200 a year is entirely possible from this source.

Most men can only spend a limited amount of money judiciously. No end of men with only $100 will fool half of it away. It is of mighty little use to give men money which they have not earned and learned to know the value of. Poverty is unpleasant, 'tis true, but it is a great blessing to the world, for it keeps more men decent than any other thing.

We know a man who twenty years ago was just a section hand on the railroad, and his pay was only $1.15 per day. He had a wife and four children. Today he is independent and easily worth $20,000. We do not know all the details of his struggle from poverty to comparative wealth, but we do know this—that even when he was paid the lowest wage he made it a point to save something, if only a few cents per day. It is in the saving and not in the earning where future financial independence lies.

TRY THIS PLAN.

If you are on a farm and feel discontented and restless, wanting to go to some other country or state, hoping to better your condition, suppose you study the problem over with a view to making your condition better right where you are. If the farm is wet, tile it; if run down, sow more clover and fertilize it. If crops are poor, try rotation, more cows and more grass. If the home is old and tumble down and barns and outbuildings poor, build new ones as far as you can and fix the others up. If you and your family feel isolated and lonesome, put in a telephone and take a good daily paper, keeping you in touch with the world. If you have too much work, you probably have too much land. Sell a part and take a little comfort while you live. It will cost a man not far from $1,000 to sell out, pull up and get settled somewhere else, counting everything connected with such a transfer. Put the $1,000 on the old place, and the chances are no man could buy you out. If you don't like your neighbors, perhaps it's your fault, for a man makes his neighbors usually good or bad, as the case may be. There is no elysium on earth, no spot where trouble, care and disappointment never come.

Near neighbors and turkey raising don't go well together. The turk is a born forager.

The trinity of road reform agents for a large section of the country is drainage, gravel and wide tires.

A friend of ours once cleaned up $16,000 on a corn option and inside of six months had dropped $20,000 on lard.

Flax is a good tamer of refractory soils. It leaves the field in a good mechanical condition for a succeeding crop.

Soils, climate and crops may vary greatly in this country and do, but human nature remains just the same everywhere.

We know of no way in which a farmer can better give evidence of his patriotism and public spirit than by dragging the highway which borders his land after every hard rain. It costs but little and accomplishes so much.

The day of the big range, the cowboy and the cattle baron is nearly over. Uncle Sam does not propose to furnish free pasturage much longer. The homestead settler is taking up the water rights and has the baron on the hip.

Differing from most other crops, onions may be grown on the same land year after year provided it is properly fertilized. This fact is worth knowing, as the clean culture given to secure one crop thereby makes it easier to grow the next year's crop.

It is not generally known that millet of the broom corn varieties is largely used as food by many nations, notably by Egyptians, Africans, Chinese and Japanese. It is a staple cereal food in all the Nile country and forms one of the most valued crops of that valley.

Within five years the last tow of logs from the northern pineries will move like a funeral procession down the Mississippi river. The great pine forests of the north country are used up, have been wrecked and slaughtered by ax and fire till only a wilderness of scrub growth remains.

A recent decision from the supreme court of the United States sustains the law subjecting oleomargarine colored in imitation of butter to a tax of 10 cents a pound. Hereafter the oleo will have to be sold white if it would escape this tax. It is a big victory for the legitimate dairy interests of the entire country.

We notice that where the road taxes are paid in money and the work done by a competent road supervisor for the township the public is getting nearly twice as much work done and done in a vastly more intelligent and permanent manner than under the old system of letting Tom, Dick and Harry work out their road taxes.

We are asked why it is that even where seed corn was most carefully selected and cared for last season so much of it planted last spring has failed to grow. We can only account for the lack of vitality on the ground that the season of 1903 being so unusually wet and cold the corn did not secure a normal maturity and development.

The study of seeds and pulp in vegetable life is an interesting one. In all other fruits the seed is an objection, and much effort has been and is being made to originate seedless types, which fact has been accomplished with the orange, grape and in some degree with plums and apples. With nuts the effort has been to reduce the pulp formation or shell, and as a result we have the paper shelled almonds and walnuts.

The milk goats find their best development in Switzerland and the island of Malta, where they are made to serve every purpose of the dairy cow. A large importation of these goats is to be made by the department of agriculture with a view to introducing these valuable animals into this country. Possibly if goats were substituted for cows it might become the fad for our nice American girls to milk them. The finest cheese in the world is made from goats' milk.

SHEEP OR COW.

A young man owning eighty acres of improved land in Minnesota wants to know if he could not profitably substitute sheep for the cow, the cow not making him money fast enough to pay off a pretty good sized mortgage which rests on his land. We are inclined to think he would make a bad mistake to make this exchange. If his dairy is not paying him it may be that he had better test his cows and see if he has not got a lot of lady boarders and not money makers. The cows which he should keep on his small farm should bring him in an income of $50 per year. The cow is the poor man's best friend, and if she cannot when well cared for pull a fellow out of the hole the sheep would never do it. While a few sheep can be made to pay well on almost any western farm, the exclusive sheep farm seldom does. There are so many ups and downs to the sheep business, rapid changes in value of both sheep and product, that they disqualify the sheep from competing with the cow and the hog in all our corn belt territory.

THE MODERN ENGLISH FARM.

The English farm of fifty years ago was a very different proposition from the modern American farm of today. There land was high priced and labor very, very cheap, and so it came that nearly all farm work was done by hand labor—the sowing and planting, the cultivation of the crops, the reaping and mowing and thrashing, all tediously and patiently wrought out by hand. Land rents were high, from $10 to $15 per acre. The price of farm produce was correspondingly high, American competition not being then known. The laboring men employed on such farms were fixtures—in fact, almost a part of the farm itself—and were contented in their ignorance with their humble lot, their plain fare and their beer. The families were large, the poorhouse generally full. Continued emigration and American competition in farm produce have changed conditions, and today modern machinery does a large part of the work on the English farm.

CANADA THISTLES.

The old question of how to get rid of a patch of Canada thistles is before us again. This pest throughout the northwest seldom reproduces itself from seed, but spreads by an underground system of sucker roots like quack grass and bindweed. Constant plowing or hoeing during a dry midsummer is one of the most effective ways of getting rid of it, but this method is a total failure if it is wet. Heavy fertilizing and the seeding of the land to some sort of smother crop, such as sorghum, rape or sowed corn, will often dispose of them. A small patch may be got rid of by a heavy mulch of straw, cornstalks or tanbark, the secret of getting rid of them being to prevent, in no matter what manner, the growth of the thistle above ground, for it cannot grow under ground when thus prevented.

CARE OF HIGHWAYS.

Replying to an interesting letter relative to the suggestion that in some cases it would be a good plan to let the farmers owning the land take care of the highways unless the said farmers are real public spirited men, taking a pride in their farms and in the highways and willing to donate quite a little work during the season to carry out their ideal of good roads, where a man's interest in the highways is strictly limited to the amount of his road tax he had better pay it and let the road supervisor do the work.

FARMING IN ALASKA.

Some very misleading statements relative to the agricultural possibilities of the Alaska country have appeared from time to time. While there is a narrow strip bordering the ocean where grass will grow and some few vegetables and cereals mature, the great area of the territory is an agricultural blank save for a few weeks' pasture which may be secured during the brief summer. It is all folly for any man to go there with the idea of working a farm—too far north, too cold, seasons too short.

If you own a runaway team, take out an accident policy. These two go together.

It is always a good idea to tackle the hard end of any job first and leave the easy end until last.

The best celery lands near Kalamazoo, Mich., which originally were just peat swamps, rent for $30 to $40 per acre.

If there are only one or two stalks of corn in the hill which should have two and three stalks, that corn crop will be one-third short.

A truck farmer in Texas cleared $700 this year on two acres of Bermuda onions, which makes a ten dollar crop of wheat or corn look sick.

The harvest of the sea on the Pacific coast is an important one. During 1903 the value of the salmon product alone was over $3,000,000, while the catch of other varieties of fish runs into large figures.

Happenings All Over the State in Condensed Form.

MIGHT HICCOUGH TO DEATH.

Fear of It Lead a Philadelphia Man to Commit Suicide—New Order on the Pennsylvania Railroad—Hungry Tramp at Honesdale.

The four prisoners who escaped from the Center county jail after fatally injuring Turnkey Jerry Condo have been captured and Dominick Constance, one of the number, has confessed to striking the blow that felled the officer.

William R. Irvin of Williamsport, widely known as a temperance orator, died on Tuesday of this week.

A committee representing the citizens of Harrisburg will file with the board of public buildings and grounds a formal protest against building a wall around the Capitol park.

A skillful operation restored the sight of Martin Rowland of William Penn, Pa., after six years of blindness and he saw the sunlight for the first time in that period, and correctly described the appearance of Dr. K. Y. Kousa, the eye specialist, whom he had never saw before.

Secretary of Agriculture Critchfield has appointed three men to inspect nursery stock in order to protect the horticulturists of the state from the San Jose scale. The inspectors are Enos B. Engle, of Waynesboro; Professor G. G. Groff, of Bucknell University, Lewisburg, and Professor George C. Butz, of the Pennsylvania State College.

Fearing that he would die of hiccoughing, Percival A. Knabb of Philadelphia, chose to die by hanging. He tied a rope around his neck and strung himself to a beam in the cellar.

Mice nibbling matches started a fire in the Reformed church at Braumstown, near Reading. The damage amounts to $300. The flames were extinguished by neighbors.

Benjamin Hitchock, who has lived for years on a shanty boat in the Allegheny river, put up his boat for sale to get money to go to England to collect $30,000 which a medium says is waiting for him there. Hitchock admits that he never heard of the relative who is said to have left him that coin, but he thinks the medium knows his business.

Consternation was caused by the announcement by the Pennsylvania railroad that hereafter the engineer and firemen of locomotives would be held responsible for their machines. The crew must do the work heretofore assigned to hostlers. It means a great reduction in the working force.

During July there were 197 deaths in Scranton, while there were only 130 in June. Many infants succumbed to summer ailments.

Beer drinking is on the increase in eastern Pennsylvania, if the report of the Scranton internal revenue office may be taken as a criterion. The revenues from beer taxes during last month were $1,000 higher than for July, 1903.

Honesdale business men put up the unique complaint that the use of the telephone deters people from coming to the store and hence good salesmen cannot dispose of goods that customers might buy if they could be shown them personally.

A tramp at Honesdale said that he was hungry enough to eat a big butter bowl full of eggs that stood in front of a store. The proprietor told him to try it. The tramp ate the whole six dozen and then said that for $5 he would eat a peck of cut straw and drink a pint of whiskey. No one was willing to give the hobo the chance.

Six-year-old Daniel Leary, of Chewton, near Sharon, fell from an apple tree and was impaled on a pitchfork. The tines passed through his body, killing him. Three members of the family have met violent death in two years.

Four members of the State Board of Charities, after inspecting the county jail, pronounced it to be the most unhealthy penal institution in the state. The sanitary conditions are a disgrace, they said, and the place is not fit for human habitation.

Mrs. Charles E. Barrett of Ridgeway went down stairs at three o'clock in the morning to get a drink of water and when she returned her husband thought her a burglar and shot her through the hip. There have been numerous burglaries and nearly every man sleeps with a revolver under his pillow.

Miss Nellie Rooney, of Shenandoah, who was admitted to the Pottsville Hospital suffering from the excessive heat, has a heart stroke which is puzzeling the surgeons. It registers 198 strokes per minute and causes the patient apparently little inconvenience. The doctors say that she will live.

Mrs. Annie Fraunfeiter of Easton, who was to have been married on Saturday evening committed suicide in her bath room on Friday evening by stopping up all the cracks in the room and turning on the gas. She is believed to have been temporarily deranged.

MRS. WILLIAM J. DAVIS.

Aged Resident of Neath Passed to Her Reward Last Week.

Mrs. Wm. J. Davis died at her home in Neath Bradford County, on Tuesday morning, August 2. The deceased suffered from stomach and kidney trouble, which ultimately resulted in her death. She bore her affliction patiently, and seemed to be conscious of the approaching end, and was fully reconciled to the inevitable.

Mary Davis was born in Carmarthenshire, South Wales, on the eleventh day of August, 1834. She was the oldest of five children—Mary, Ann, Samuel, Hopkin, Elizabeth (dec.) and Elizabeth. Her parents Hopkin and Ann Arnold Davis with their children came over to America in the year 1845, and settled at Neath, and the subject of this obituary remained with her parents up to her marriage to Wm. J. Davis, which took place on June 5, 1856. After her marriage, she and her husband lived most of their married life on the farm now owned by their son, Phillip Davis, from which place they moved to Neath four corners, where they lived upward of 10 years, and where she died on Tuesday morning in her 70th year. Two children were born to them—Frederick and Phillip Davis.

Mrs. Davis joined the congregational church at Neath in her youth and her connection with the church continued to the last. She leaves to mourn her loss, an aged husband whose companion she had been upward of 48 years; a brother and sister, Samuel Hopkin and Elizabeth Davis both of LeRaysville, two sons Frederick and Phillip Davis of Neath, to gether with a number of more distant relatives, and a host of warm friends.

The funeral services were held at the Neath Congregational church on Friday, August 5, when the minister, Rev. Hugh Jones, preached from Ps. 103-30, to a large congregation.

JAPS ON WOLF HILLS

Port Arthur Garrison Retires Before Their Advance.

ASSAILANTS' LOSS ENORMOUS

General Stoessel Says Russian Casualties Were Not Great—Morale of His Men Excellent—Seventy Thousand In the Enemy's Force.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—The following dispatch from Viceroy Alexeieff, dated Aug. 7, has been received by the czar:

"General Stoessel reports as follows:

" 'At 5 in the morning of July 27, the enemy having advanced a strong force, their artillery opened fire along their whole front, followed by a series of attacks, one of which, directed against Yupilaza mountain, was especially vigorous.

" 'At about 8 in the evening the enemy were everywhere repulsed with enormous losses. I remained in the advanced positions we have held for two days against an army very much stronger than ours.

" 'At 4 in the morning of July 30 about five divisions of Japanese took the offensive against our position on the Wolf hills. In view of the enormous superiority of the enemy's forces and the weakness of the position our troops were ordered to retire to the next positions without fighting. The movement was effected in complete order under the protection of artillery, which by accurate fire at short ranges completely stopped the Japanese advance.

" 'Our losses have not yet been ascertained, but they were not great. The losses of the Japanese were very considerable. In the engagements of July 26 and July 27 the Japanese had about 70,000 men and a considerable number of siege guns.

" 'The morale of the Russian troops is excellent and their health good.' "

Yupilaza mountain is situated ten miles northeast of Port Arthur. The Wolf hills are only six miles northward and near the railroad station. The general staff explains that this position consists of a long crest of hills, offering a great advantage owing to their proximity to the fortress.

THE BATTLE OF JULY 31.

Most Important Action Since the Crossing of the Yalu.

Tokyo, Aug. 9.—A belated dispatch from General Kuroki's headquarters in the field, Aug. 1, says the battle of July 31 was the most important which General Kuroki's army has fought since crossing the Yalu. Many more Russians were engaged than in any former battle. They occupied an equally strong position, had much more artillery and were better acquainted with the country, having for a long time occupied the area over which the Japanese maneuvered. The Japanese victory upon this occasion, if not more important than that on the Yalu, was won against greater odds and was consequently a better test of the mettle of their troops and more creditable to their valor. The result was that the Japanese gained ten miles or more on their advance toward Liaoyang.

How far the Russians have retreated is not known yet, but only one strong stragetic and defensive position intervenes between General Kuroki's army and Liaoyang, that being situated eight miles south of that city.

It is impossible to estimate the Russian casualties during the engagement, and reports of losses on the Japanese side were not rendered this morning.

While the Russian and Japanese on this front are stretched over a long line of country, the Russians are known to have four divisions in the field between General Kuroki and Liaoyang and between that point and Mukden, a large proportion of the men being Poles from Europe.

The theater of part of the battle was a valley beginning three miles from the Yangse pass. This valley, which is about ten miles long, nowhere more than a mile wide, and running from north to south, is level and covered with high corn, giving the troops fine cover.

In the morning the two armies were confronting each other across the valley. The Japanese army was stationed on ranges of hills fronting the pass, while the Russians held a higher range west of the valley. An artillery engagement began in the morning and lasted until 5 in the afternoon, during which neither side appeared to gain any advantage so far as spectators could judge. The Russians had batteries in the high hills beyond the village of Towan, commanding the Liaoyang road, which the Japanese shelled heavily all day from the front and left without silencing.

The Japanese artillery was handicapped in action by soft roads, which forced them to bring up ammunition by hand.

The Russians used twenty-four guns from Motien pass. The Japanese had two or more batteries in the hills and one or two batteries in the valley on the plain, without any cover except the high corn, which the Russians never discovered, focusing all their fire on the batteries in the hills.

A spectacular and daring feature of the day was the advance of the Japanese infantry across the valley, which began at 5 p. m. and resulted in the occupation of all of the Russian gun positions and their infantry intrenchments in the space of two hours. The Russians, as usual, could not withstand the charges of the Japanese infantry and fled through the hills.

The appearance of the field indicates a complete rout, the Russians leaving much clothing and camp paraphernalia behind them.

SENATOR VEST DEAD.

Passes Away Peacefully at His Home In Sweet Springs, Mo.

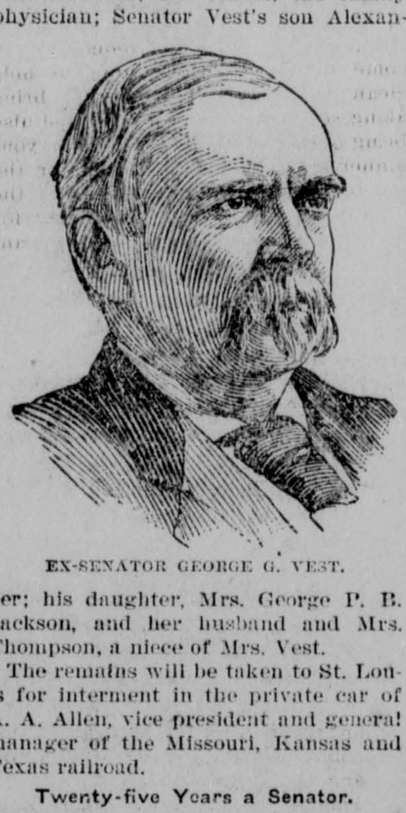
HAD LONG BEEN IN ILL HEALTH

End of a Conspicuous and Picturesque Career—The Last Member of the Confederate Government Sitting In the Congress of the United States.

Sweet Springs, Mo., Aug. 9.—After lingering for weeks between life and death former United States Senator G. G. Vest has passed peacefully away. He had been so near death for the past three days that the end came without a struggle.

He was conscious until about 2 a. m. Sunday morning, when he sank into a state of coma from which he never aroused.

He lost the power of speech Saturday morning, and during the last thirty-six hours of his life his breathing was barely perceptible.



EX-SENATOR GEORGE G. VEST.

At the bedside when the end came was his wife, Dr. Jarvis, the family physician; Senator Vest's son Alexander; his daughter, Mrs. George P. B. Jackson, and her husband and Mrs. Thompson, a niece of Mrs. Vest.

The remains will be taken to St. Louis for interment in the private car of A. A. Allen, vice president and general manager of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad.

Twenty-five Years a Senator.

George Graham Vest was the last member of the Confederate government to sit in the congress of the United States. In the twenty-five years that he spent in the United States senate he became one of the best known figures there, high in the counsels of the Democratic party and a warm friend of many of the leading Republicans.

Born at Frankfort, Ky., on Dec. 6, 1830, Senator Vest was educated at Center college and then studied at Lexington. After his admission to the bar in 1853 he determined to leave Kentucky and commence the practice of law in the central portion of Missouri. His ready wit and ability as an orator and debater soon attracted the attention of his neighbors and brought him into public life.

In 1860 he was a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket, and in the following year he was sent to the Missouri house of representatives, then sitting at Neosho. The regular capital of the state, Jefferson City, at that time was in the hands of the Federal troops.

Member of Confederate Congress.

Throughout the war Vest continued in public life, sitting at Richmond in both branches of the Confederate congress. At this time he was an intimate associate and trusted adviser of the leaders of the Confederacy. It was said of him a short time before his death that he probably knew more of the internal history of the Confederacy than any other living man.

With the surrender at Appomattox and the collapse of the Confederacy, Vest returned to private life in Missouri. Here he formed a partnership with John S. Phillips, who had served as colonel in the Union army during the war. Together the two men increased their legal reputations by successful contests with the speculators of all sorts who poured into the fertile country after the desolation of the war was over.

A Debater of Wide Renown.

Senator Vest continued his activity in politics. In 1879 he took his seat at Washington as senator from Missouri and the colleague of Cockrell, the old Confederate general. In Washington, as in Missouri, his talents as a debater attracted wide attention, and a speech by Senator Vest was an attraction which filled the galleries. Broad shouldered, with keen eyes, well shaped head and resonant voice, his presence increased the effect of his words.

One of the most remarkable incidents of Senator Vest's long career was his warm attachment to Senator Quay, which political differences were never permitted to affect. In spite of this friendship, when Quay was appointed to the senate by Governor Stone, Senator Vest voted against him and by his vote excluded his friend.

During the controversy over the coal tariff in the winter of 1903 Senator Vest was especially prominent, though signs of the approaching physical breakdown were not lacking. His eyesight had been failing for some time and troubled him more and more.

FIGURING ON RESULTS.

The Presidential electoral college this year will contain 29 more votes than did the college of 1900. The old college contained 447 votes; the new one will contain 476. On the basis of the presidential ballot of 1900, the Republicans will get 19 of these additional votes, and the Democrats 10. If one would start the two parties out from the post to which they tied in 1904, the Democrats would be slightly handicapped. Of the 447 electoral votes cast in 1900 McKinley received 292, and Bryan 155, a majority for McKinley of 137 electoral votes.

If the states should all vote at this year's election as they did in 1900, the Republican candidate would receive 311 electoral votes and the Democratic candidate 165. In order to secure a choice this year 239 electoral votes will be necessary, therefore, the Democrats will need 74 votes in addition to what they had before. The Democrats in all their calculations assume that their party will hold everything it had in 1900.

The above statement shows how the votes of the Electoral college were cast at the last presidential election. How did the 45 states vote at their latest election? By the apportionment of representatives, made by the Congress under the census of 1900, the total electoral vote in 1904 will be 476. The number necessary to a choice is 239 or 15 more than in the previous decade. In the latest elections the following states were carried by the Republicans: California, 10; Colorado, 5; Connecticut, 7; Deleware, 3; Idaho, 3; Illinois, 27; Indiana, 15; Iowa, 13; Kansas, 10; Maine, 6; Masachusetts, 16; Michigan, 14; Minnesota, 11; Mon., 3; Neb., 8; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 12; New York, 39; North Dakota, 4; Ohio, 23; Oregon, 4; Pennsylvania, 34; South Dakota, 4; Utah, 3; Vermont, 4; Washington, 5; West Virginia, 7; Wisconsin, 13; Wyoming, 3. Total electoral votes in the Republican states 310. At the latest elections the following states went Democratic: Alabama, 11; Arkansas, 9; Florida, 5; Georgia, 13; Kentucky, 13; Louisiana, 9; Maryland, 8; Mississippi, 10; Missouri, 18; Nevada, 3; North Carolina, 12; Rhode Island, 4; South Carolina, 9; Tennessee, 12; Texas 18; Virginia, 12. Total electoral votes in the Democratic states 166. Republican majority of electoral votes gauged by the latest election, 144. To carry the Presidential election this year the Democrats must reverse the figures of the latest state elections to the extent of 73 electoral votes. Of course, this gain is admitted to be hopeless without New York's 39 as a start. Even with New York 34 more electoral votes would be necessary to win by a majority of 1 in the electoral college. New York and New Jersey transferred to the Democratic party would leave that party 22 short of an electoral majority. These, it is claimed, may be found in Connecticut with 7 votes, in West Virginia with 7 votes and Indiana with 15, while the factional fight in Wisconsin is expected to add 13 more. But nothing short of a political upheaval can bring about this result and of this there is at present no indication.

Twenty-nine of the 45 states were carried by the Republicans at the latest elections. Of the 16 states carried by the Democrats only two, Nevada, and Rhode Island, are northern states. In Rhode Island the Democrats elected only the governor. The rest of the state officers and the legislature are Republicans. Neyada was Republican until the silver question became prominent. Never before were the northern states as solidly Republicans as they are now, by the figures of their latest elections. This is the historical answer to the solid south, and will, unquestionably, continue as long as that threat is maintained.

Frederick A. Godcharles of Northumberland county was nominated for State senator at a meeting of the Twenty-seventh district held at Selinsgrove Tuesday, Aug. 2. The meeting was a lively one. The district comprises Northumberland, Snyder and Union counties. For fourteen ballots each county voted for its choice. On the fifteenth ballot the Snyder county conferees deserted their candidate and voted with the Northumberland conferees, thus nominating Godcharles. Senator Benjamin Focht of Union county acknowledged his defeat in a neat speech.

AGAINST GAMBLING.

The Binghamton Herald adds its force to those papers who are waging a crusade against poker playing and stock gambling. The Herald had this to say: "Edgar T. Washburn of Buffalo, who killed himself, his wife and daughter lost his money in gambling. There was never any time probably when he was not up against a sure thing for the gamblers with which he played, but he kept at it, and kept at it until at last ruin stared him in the face. He might have known, as he probably did at the start, that he could not hope to beat the gamblers, but the gambling fever was on him, and it lasted until through playing and losing his reason was dethroned, and he murdered his wife and daughter and then killed himself.

"Thee is a lesson in this for the young man who likes to play poker, or the old man either for that matter. There is a lesson in this for the fellow who buys stocks on margins only to find that he must put up more than double the original amount he invested to make himself good and to finally take a loss that leaves him in a bad shape financially.

"There is an element of gambling, of course in every business transaction, but the risks of ordinary business are simply nothing, when compared to the almost certain loss which results from margin gambling, poker playing, and other games of chance. After all the fellow who is willing to earn his money, and is content with what he can get honestly has the gambler beaten to a standstill when it comes to getting a cinch on human happiness."

LIQUOR SELLING ON SUNDAY.

Every hotel man or saloon keeper who sells liquor on Sunday is sleeping every night with the sword of the law hanging suspended over his head. His arrest may follow from the unexpected action of the ward constable doing his duty. It may come from some one who has a grudge against him. It may come through a defective of a law and order and anti-saloon league. The men who places his future in such jeapardy is foolish. He may be popular among those who cannot pass even one day in seven without a drink over the bar but he is putting himself in a position to spend more or less time in jail with thieves and robbers.

The liquor of the United States are liberal enough now. Saloons are plenty enough, everybody knows. Then why break the law? Arrests are coming thick and fast in towns where heretofore the side door was always open on Sunday. Some time a real constable or a law and order league will strike Bradford county hard. Then it will be in order to benoan one's fate in the county jail or cracking stone back of the court house.

Concerning the production of anthracite coal for the month of July, an officer of the Reading says that, pending the compilation of the official figures, the estimate of the production is from 4,700,000 to 5,000,000 tons. Assuming that the July output proves to be 4,700,000 tons, the production in July will be 677,495 tons less than in July of last year, when 5,377,495 tons were sent to market, and 1,025,795 tons less than in June of this year. If an average of 4,500,000 tons is maintained for the balance of 1904 the year's output will be 56,757,207 tons, or at least 6,000,000 tons more than estimated requirements.

A Harrisburg dispatch says that Dr. Silas C. Swallow, Prohibition candidate for President, opened his campaign at a mass meeting Tuesday evening at the court house Dr. Swallow said that the Prohibition campaign will be conducted from headquarters in Chicago and Harrisburg. He will start on a campaign tour in a special car the middle of September, accompanied by five speakers and a male quartet, and will visit the capitals and principal cities of thirty states. He says he will be disappointed if he does not poll a larger vote than was ever cast for a Prohibition nominee for President.

Ex-County Treasurer Frederick Kirkendall will have to pay back to the county over $15,000, which he kept as commissions. This was decided by an opinion handed down by Judge Porter. The case went to the supreme court some months ago and a decision covering part of the receipts was received. It was then contended by Kirkendall that a part of the commissions were legally his, as the supreme court had decided that only part of them were not. It was on this point that the Superior Court compels the return of the money.

If every house owner or tenant in Towanda would do a little cleaning in front of his residence before the firemen's convention what a fine appearance the town would make. Many places are now kept in a most orderly manner but there are others who have not been struck with the good habit as yet. Get it.

Towanda will see one of the largest crowds in her history on firemen's parade day of the coming Five-County convention on Friday, Aug. 19. There will be plenty of things to see and the parade will be one with finely uniformed companies in line and the best musical organizations in this section.

ON BRINK OF REVOLUTION.

It is a common belief among civilized people that, sooner or later, Russia must experience something like the French revolution. Conditions in Russia are similar to those that prevailed in France in the last half of the 18th century—on one side a governing aristocracy, arrogant, corrupt, oppressive, holding all power; on the other a peasantry, ignorant, poverty-stricken, downtrodden. The clash must come and woe to the aristocrats when it does come. The New York Sun thinks the assassination of Bobrikoff and Von Plehve may mark the beginning of the inevitable terror. It says:

It looks as if a real reign of terror was about to set in in the empire. In every corner of the dominions of the autocrat of all the Russians there is disaffection and hatred of the existing system. It is true that this feeling is confined to the educated classes. The lower orders don't think and don't care. They have no initiative and are not dangerous. But the army itself is honeycombed with treason. As in the time of the "underground Russia" movement, many members of the aristocracy, outside official circles, are in sympathy with the foes of the existing regime. The despairful thing about any revolution movement is that it is not likely to result in any larger measures of liberty.

The old adage that "there is nothing new under the sun" has been further substantiated by the New York Sun, which recalls the fact that "a Parker and Davis ticket, is not entirely new in a Presidential contest in the United States." It was on Washington's birthday, February 22, 1872, that Judge David Davis of the United States Supreme Court was made the candidate of the Labor Reform party for the Presidency, his associate on the ticket being Judge Joel Parker, of New Jersey, who had the year preceding been elected the Governor of his state.

"There is only one custom in our country which I would like to see established in America, and that is the custom of dealing with drunkards," said Isaac Yohannen, a Persian missionary, who lectured at Sioux City, Iowa, the other night. "In our country when a man gets drunk we take him and nail him to the sidewalk driving spikes through his ears. Then when other people come along they spit in his face and kick him until he is sober. I think this method would do a great deal of good in America because you have a great deal more drunkenness than we do."

Automobiles are crowding horses out of Paris. The census shows that there are a thousand less horses in the French capital than there were last year. Probably there is a similar state of affairs in every great city reached by the automobile fever. The French army officers are studying devices of automobiles for transportation purposes, and it is probable that the horse will be crowded off army wagons. By and by the horse may become a curiosity, as a specimen of a once used and beautiful animal.

The kind of ball played by Towanda and Father Mathew here on Monday shows that one can't tell just what game to go to see the best exhibition of ball. Both teams were expected to play the games of their lives and instead both put up rocky ball. Father Mathew doing just a yellow as Towanda part of the time. There will be other teams here with a lower reputation than the Elmira boys and they will play much better base ball.

He has many friends who would be pleased to see him win.

LINKS AT MONTROSE.

What That Town is Advocating at Present.

The Montrose Independent Republican says: "Two men said this week that if they were assured that the golf links were a permanent institution in Montrose they would buy land and build houses in town. A leading merchant in town said he had done more business in July than in the preceding four months taken together. The Country Club brings the people here in summer time. Without it a good many of them would not come. In view of these results the Country Club must be considered by our people as a business institution of importance to the place. It is a money earner for every store keeper and every real estate owner.

"It cannot be expected that the goose will continue to lay golden eggs without feeding. The golf links are too small and much work is required to be done to them to make them the best advertisement and attraction to visitors that the town could possibly have. This cannot be done without more liberal support. The time has arrived when the question must be decided. Shall the golf links be improved and extended, and Montrose grow with them as a summer resort attracting hundreds where our beautiful town now attracts tens?"

TRIPLE ANNIVERSARY.

Celebrated at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Manley.

The children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Manley gathered at the old homestead at East Canton, Friday, July 22. The occasion was in honor of the eightieth anniversary of Mr. Manley's birth, the seventy-seventh aniversary of Mrs. Manley's birth and the fifty-seventh anniversary of their married life. After a dinner which greatly enlarged the horizon of the diners, Hon. Lawrence T. Manley, acting as toastmaster, proposed the folowing toasts: "Early Days" responded to by Thomas S. Manley, who gave a highly interesting sketch of life in the early days of the community, relating many incidents, forcibly impressing upon his hearers the contrast between those days and the present. "Home Gatherings," "Efficacy of the shingle in the training of the child," and other toasts, were responded to by those having the most intimate personal knowledge of the subjects assigned to them.

Of all the children and grandchildren but four were absent. Lydia, wife of Arthur M. Mason, who died May 19, 1893, and Julia, who died in infancy, Clara, wife of A. D. Lawrence was absent with her infant daughter.

HUNGARIAN ARRESTED.

Alleged to Be Dealing In Liquor Without License.

Chief of Police Innes of Canton arrested John Wichett of Cold Springs yesterday and brought him here Monday to place in the county jail. A warrant was issued last week for Wichett's arrest on complaint of Wilson Jennings of Cold Springs but the affair was not kept quiet and Mr. Hollon couldn't get his man. He suspected that he would go to Canton to board a train and the chief of police caught him.

Wichett is charged with selling liquor without a license, to minors, to persons of intemperate habits and on Sunday. It is said that he has disposed of about $2,500 worth of liquor since he began business.

BATTLE WITH A RATTLER.

The Reptile Intruded on a Picnic Party and Created Consternation.

On Sunday M. Landon and family accompanied by Miss Helen Ayers and several other young girls drove to Mr. Landon's place on the mountain. They took hamocks and lunches along and prepared to have a pleasant day's outing. Cassie Landon and Helen Ayers found a piece of board about eight feet long, and placing stones under the ends sat down to eat peanuts. A small bag of salt and the nuts lay on the board between them.

While thus seated a huge rattlesnake suddenly crawled across the seat from the rear. The girls shrieked but were too paralyzed with terror to move. Mr. Landon siezed a piece of scantling and hit the snake and then carried the girls to a place of safety afterwards returning and despatching the reptile. It measured four feet one inch and carried 12 rattles.—Canton Sentinel.

PROMINENT RESIDENT OF TROY HAS PASSED AWAY.

Colonel Henry S. Sweet Died at His Home There On Saturday.

Colonel Henry S. Sweet died very suddenly at his home at Troy at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. He was one of Troy's prominent citizens and his death came as a great shock to his family and his large circle of acquaintances. While he had been in poor health for several months his death came most unexpectedly. He passed away at his home "The Terrace."

Mr. Sweet was born at Hartford, Susquehanna county, July 21, 1840, being at the time of his death 64 years of age. He resided near Hartford until 1886, going from there to Detroit, where he lived about four years going from there to Orvisburg, Miss., where he engaged very successfully in the lumber business, being President of The Champion Lumber company. His health failing, he decided to spend his remaining days in the north and moved to Troy in 1901, purchasing the Horace Pomeroy mansion, where he has since lived.

Although not being actively engaged in business, he has taken a very keen interest in everything that would tend to improve the town and was only recently elected president of the fair association. Mr. Sweet was married in 1869 to Miss Esther M. Orvis, of Mansfield and his home life was a happy one, his family consisting in addition to Mrs. Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. Will Sweet and two grandchildren, of whom Mr. Sweet was particularly fond. The funeral services were held at "The Terrace" at 2 p. m. Monday, atfer which the remains will be taken to Hartford for interment.

AN IDEAL PLACE.

Summer Visitors to Towanda Charmed With Town's Advantages.

There are a large number of visitors in Towanda this summer. Some are here for the first time while others have been in Towanda before. The verdict of those who visit Towanda in the summer time has been unanimously to the effect that the town and its surroundings possess advantages of attraction for the summer visitor and boarder that few places have. A lady from New York who has visited many summer resorts says that Towanda is unquestionably ahead of any place she has yet seen. Those who have paid out money to visit the Pocono mountains and many other resorts come back better satisfied than ever that Towanda is the peer of them all and superior of many.

Those who visit here have an opportunity of taking some of the most delightful drives that nature has endowed any section of the country with. High up on the mountains clad with the heavy foliage of the season the visitor may see the Susquehanna winding its way many hundred feet below. The bass fishing is fine for those who care to try the rod and a trip down the river in a boat and canoe is a positive delight.

RAEGAN WAS UGLY.

Assaulted Ann Fagan and Then Attacked Officer Hollon.

William Raegan of South Waverly will have six months of cracking stone to cogitate whether it is best to create rough houses and then strike an officer in the police court. Raegan went to a house on Plank Road street Sunday and chased Ann Fagan around with a razor in his hand and also tore her wrapper off from her and in that condition she had to run from the house.

He was arrested by Officers Miller and Hollon and in Justice Orcutt's office he got mad at Hollon and struck him in the face. Mr. Hollon has a bad hand and Mr. Miller went for Raegan and put the club to him to put a stop to his insolence. Raegan pleaded guilty both to assaulting Ann Fagan and Mr. Hollon and was given five months for striking the latter and one month for his roughhouse on Plank Road.

Hand Severely Burned.

Leon H. Stedge, the Main street barber, is incapacitated for work this week by severe burns on his right hand received at an early hour Sunday morning in extinguishing a brisk fire at his home on South Second street. Mr. Stedge reached home about midnight Saturday and while partaking of a lunch heard an unusual sound upstairs. On investigation it was found that a lighted lamp left in a bedroom had exploded, scattering fire all about the room. In smothering the flames Mr. Stedge received severe burns on the inside of his hand. The damage to the room was slight.

Owner for Short Time.

Edward Yost had an automobile for a short time. Accompanied by Theo. Forbes he went to Philadelphia last week and purchased a machine. He thought he would drive to Sayre, and everything was going lovely until they reached Allentown, and then there was an explosion and the machine was wrecked. The occupants escaped without injury.—Athens News.

Touring to Niagara.

Insurance Promptly Paid.

W. G. Gordon, treasurer of Towanda Council No. 532, Royal Arcanum, on Saturday paid to Mrs. W. S. Rickey $3,000, the amount of insurance carried in that excellent order by the late W. S. Rickey.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM A FORMER TOWANDIAN.

Mrs. J. Ren Decker Tells Relatives Here of Trip.

Through the courtesy of the recipients this paper is permitted to publish extracts from a letter written her parents by a former Towanda lady, Mrs. J. Ren Decker, now of Little Falls, Minn., which gives an account of the trip of herself and friends with incidents connected therewith to Mille Lacs, the "Queen of Minnesota Lakes," considered by all odds the most picturesque and beautiful of that state's inland waters, a veritable inland sea containing 400 square miles. The letter says:

"We were gone just one week, taking a day to go and a day to return. We were 50 miles from a railroad and right among the Indians. Sunday I witnessed a game of ball between the Indians and Whites, the dark fellows coming out ahead. We sat on the ground with bucks playing cards and watching the game on one side of us and onthe other squaws and little papooses. I could not make out the game they were playing but it used the entire deck and they were playing for small money. They all try to dress as we do but some of them make a dreadful failure of it. The squaws were worse than the bucks and look so funny in a hat covered with cheap flowers and ribbons and a blanket and moccasins that it is almost impossible to keep from laughing at them. There was one old squaw who sat on an Indian grave who, I do not think, had anything on but a bright blanket but held an old parasol trimmed with lace over her head, that made me stoop down and tie up my shoes. They had dressed up in their best to come to the game and I would not have missed it for a farm.

"Now about the graves. You probably have seen old ones but you have never seen fresh ones. There were one or two not a month old with lots of fresh tobacco and gifts at the head of the grave for the departed. If it be a male they cover the grave with his canoe, over that they place a box with a hole in one end to feed him through. Every time that they have soup they go in a body and have a big time and give him a good dose through the box. Some of the boxes are covered with oil cloth to keep the rain out. The old Indians are dying off fast, and I think every chief I saw was over a hundred and so many old, old squaws and they are so industrious and do beautiful work. While there we had some boys take us in a launch to Henepin Island where Father Henepin was taken by the Indians and left to die but two old squaws had mercy on him and went out and released him and he escaped down the river to Minneapolis. We also visited another place, Spirit Island, which the Indians will never go near. It was covered with seagulls and we brought some of the eggs home with us and there were lots of such cunning little squabs but I did not have the heart to take them away from their nests."

PRISONERS WILL WORK IN THE WINTER TIME.

Prison Board Considering the Erection of Sheds.

The prison board of Bradford county is so well pleased with the results of the stone pile and other work on which jail prisoners have been used, that they are considering the erection of sheds to protect the prisoners from the snow while they crack stone in the winter time. There is little doubt but that the sheds will be built.

The working of the prisoners has had very beneficial effects in a number of ways. It is making tramps stear clear of the county in the districts where the officials give them sentences for vagrancy and disorderly conduct. It is believed to be deterring people from the commission of minor offenses and it is making a lot of prisoners pay costs instead of sitting out their sentences in the jail, playing cards and checkers.

Had Narrow Escape.

R. C. Zill of W. F. Humphrey's tailoring store, accompanied by Mrs. Zill and her two sisters from Auburn, who are visiting here, had an exciting experience on the river on Tuesday evening of last week had a very lucky escape from what might have been a catastrophe. Coming down through the rifts under the railroad bridge their boat struck a stone and they were all thrown into the water. The boat sank but the party happened to land near enough to shore so that Mr. Zill succeeded in getting them all on dry land.

Attempted Burglary.

An attempt was made to enter the home of H. B. Hoffman on College avenue on Friday evening but the noise of the opening the shutters roused Mrs. Hoffman. Two men were seen at the Hoffmans in the yard and also on the porch of Jacob Allis's house. It is thought that the men were after something to eat. They made their escape.

Camping By the Susquehanna.

A jolly camping party on the Susquehanna near the mouth of Towanda creek this week consists of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McAllister and daughter Bessie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Potter and family, Mrs. N. W. King, Miss Grace Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hunsinger.

BURGESS PRATT DISCHARGES ON FAST DRIVING CHARGE.

Police Court Filled With Those Interested in Case.

Burgess Pratt presided over an alleged horse racing case Friday afternoon and the police headquarters were filled with the friends of Frank Morris, owner and trainer of the black horse "Mike," also the friends of Michael Madigan, who holds down third base for the Towanda base ball team. The defendants were charged with fast driving and disorderly conduct. Attorney Lane represented the borough and J. Roy Lilley the defendants.

A resident of York avenue who sent in the call to the police testified at the hearing that she heard parties coming up the street at a fast pace and urging on their horses, but that they got by before she could see them. Another witness saw them but did not think they were going over seven miles an hour. Another witness said he heard some call ont "Come on, Frank." Officers Miller and Allen also testified and the former said that when he accosted Morris and Madigan on Main street they admitted that they had been monkeying up between the electric lights but that neither horse could go over four miles an hour. This statement caused a profound sensation at the hearing and will no doubt reduce the reputation of Mr. Morris's fast one as well as tend to lower its market value. Mr. Allen had heard the defendants "jollying" each other about a horse race earlier in the evening.

After a summary of the points by the attorneys Burgess Pratt reviewed the evidence with the skill and precision of a skilled judge and discharged the defendants for lack of evidence, admonishing them against the sin of fast driving should they ever be tempted to engage in the sport.

HELD ON THREE COUNTS.

J. H. Burr of Towanda Has Another Charge Against Him.

During the past few months J. H. Burr of Towanda has been held to court on the charge of assault and battery preferred by Mrs. Aaron Eddy, also on a charge of surety of the peace on complaint of his wife, Martha Burr.

Now Mrs. Burr has had the husband arrested again on the charge of threatening to cut her heart out. Burr is alleged to have made this threat while the two were at East Towanda on Monday, Burr meeting his wife there. The wife also says that on May 18 Burr threatened to kill her. In default of bail he was committed to jail.

On a hearing before Justice Meredith Friday afternoon J. H. Burr, charged with surety of the peace on complaint of his wife, Martha Burr, was discharged. The charge seemed to be sufficiently established by the evidence but on motion of the defendant's attorney he was discharged on the ground that Burr was already under bail for surety of the peace by the same prosecutrix.

ON MONTH'S VACATION.

Rev. and Mrs. O. A. Houghton at Thousand Islands.

Rev. O. A. Houghton, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Towanda, and Mrs. Houghton are at Thousand Island Park for a stay of several weeks. During the pastor's absence there will be preaching services a part of the time. Last Sunday evening there was a song service in the evening conducted by Mrs. Clark Willson. On the morning of Sunday, Aug. 14, Judge A. C. Fanning will give an address on the General Conference that met at Los Angeles in May last of which Judge Fanning was a prominent member.

In the evening of the fourteenth Rev. Mr. Hall, formerly of Towanda, now pastor of the Methodist church at Harwick, N. Y., will preach. The church will probably be closed the last two Sundays in August. Sunday school will be held as usual each Sunday.

Another Dividend.

It is believed in railroad circles that the Lehigh Valley directors will declare another dividend of 1 per cent on the common stock at their October meeting. If this is done it can be said that common stock will carry a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent per annum hereafter. President Thomas has always opposed dividends until they could be paid regularly. The annual report will be issued next month. A good showing for the year is predicted.

Newspaper Changes.

James M. Thompson, late associate editor of the Wellsboro Advocate, has purchased a half interest in the Watkins (N. Y.) Democrat.

Frank VanKuren, of Coles & VanKuren, publishers of the Mansfield Advertiser, has purchased the Hammandsport Herald. Jos. H. Geer, a well-known newspaper man of this section, will be associated with Mr. VanKuren in the editorial management of the Herald. S. E. Coles will continue the Mansfield Advertiser.

In County Jail.

"Let-er-go" Flynn and his housekeeper have been committed to jail by Burgess Pratt on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Mrs. "Let-er-go" got a fine of $5 and costs or 30 days and Mr. "Let-er" one of $5 or ten days.

Death of O. E. Lovel.

O. E. Lovel died at his home at Athens on Tuesday of last week after an illness of four months with dropsy of the heart. He was 72 years old. Funeral services were held Friday.

APPLE CROP PROMISES TO BE EXCELLENT ONE.

Fruit is Good and Yield Will Be Unusually Large.

Apple growers of this section are jubilant over the fact that there is prospect of an extra large yield of fruit this year, says the Elmira Advertiser. This part of the state seems to be specially favored, as many other sections are not so fortunate. On the whole, however, there seems to be an abundance of green fruit and if nothing unusual occurs most of it will probably mature. The quality of the fruit this year seems to be above the ordinary. There are comparatively few worms or insects on the trees compared to the number in former years. Some spraying has been done, but on the average it is not considered necessary. Efforts are made each year by prominent orchadists to get information from other large apple growing conditions east of the Mississippi and Missouri. It is learned that Michigan has only a fair crop, about the same amount of early fruit and considerably less winter fruit in the aggregate than last year. Missouri has a good crop of early fruit, but has very few late ones. The Virginias are showing a much smaller yield than last year. New York state and the New England states all have more or less apples, estimated in the aggregate at about three-quarters of last year's crop. The crop was deceptive in this section last year in that the insides of the trees showed fruit which made the yield bigger than the early showing promised, but this year the apples are mostly on the outside of the trees, where they are all in sight, and good judges say that this is an indication that the crop will fall short of estimates.

The European market will have a somewhat better home supply of apples than last year, but it is expected that the markets opened abroad last year will be increased this year in spite of the competition of European home fruit, now that foreignres have got the taste of American apples. Prices are not being talked to any extent yet. Predictions are for $2.50 for choice fruit. Pobably from $2.00 to $2.25 for first and second packed together and about $1.50 for seconds. In this section there will be but few seconds.

CHAPTER IV.

Acton never looked up as the count withdrew, nor did he move. No words of his aid the historian in recounting his sensations; but, for that matter, how easy to realize them! What stands out most strikingly, however, is that Acton couldn't credit his own hearing and really didn't grasp the full meaning of the atrocity in its details and significance. He vaguely realized that if the jewels had been stolen, as his tormentor declared, his own absence might by the vulgar be construed suspiciously. But—Kitty—he shrieked out a maniacal laugh of scorn and agony.

Presently he was released from his straps and informed that the count would come to him when he felt able to converse. A day of maddening perplexity followed. Sometimes he could see the land, almost within hailing distance; sometimes other yachts passed so close that he tried to make himself heard through the barred windows.

Was the atrocious story of the ring true? Why had he given it? Had this nefarious comedy been prearranged? Obviously—since the carriage was at the door, the yacht within reach and the craftiest precautions taken to divert chase and put suspicion upon him. What ought he to do? If the fatal ring were in Kitty's possession, she might be wearing it, she might even at this moment be poisoned! He groaned in horror. But would the count spare her life, even if the incriminating letter, his ruin, were signed? He would sign it and shoot himself. Yes, that was the only way out of this hideous coil. Days of reflections and tortures like this passed. Finally he said hoarsely to the steward, "Ask the count to come to me."

But instead of the count, the steward returned in a few minutes and handed Acton a note. On opening it read:

> I know what you want. Here is the letter. Sign it and return by bearer.
> VON MALSTERN.

With almost paralyzed fingers the hideous fabrication was signed, the letters sprawling and almost indecipherable. The wretched man, now irretrievably ruined, flung himself on the bed in a paroxysm of anguish. The door opened again, but Acton didn't move.

"I'm sorry to say this won't do," the count's voice sounded deprecatingly. "No one who knows your signature would accept this. Try to do it better—Himmel!" As the count's easy, almost genial, accents went on, Acton, fairly maniacal in his fury, threw himself out of the bed, seized his torturer by the neck and in an instant wrenched him from his feet. He fell at the threshold and across the closed doorway. Holding him down with his knees, Acton slipped the bolt into the door, then, releasing his hold, despoiled the count of the pistol he had carried rather obtrusively as part of his naval attire.

"Get up!" Teddy cried hoarsely.

"You're a very strong young man," the count vouchsafed, as if the most ordinary tussle had just discomfited him. "I had no idea you were so strong. It's too bad you gain nothing by the vantage."

"I gain all I want. You don't leave this cabin until you sign what I shall compose. Just fix yourself under the window there while I write."

The count laughed.

"Not a bad imitation, only you forget. I'm master of forty men. Listen." He put a whistle to his lips before Teddy could guess what he meditated and blew a shrill blast. It had barely sounded when there came a violent wrench at the door.

"You see, it's all quite useless. I bear no ill will, however. Any man is justified in fighting for liberty, though, for that matter, yours is not in question. Yes, break in the door," he answered in response to an inquiry from outside. In a second the whacks of an ax were heard. Teddy took up the pistol.

"If you break that door open, the instant the first man appears I'll blow the count's head off!"

For an instant the count looked Acton in the eye. There was no mistaking the meaning there. He flushed slightly, half smiled and called out in German:

"There, Caesar, that will do. I'll give you further orders in ten minutes. Leave a guard at the gangway and withdraw to your post. Now," he continued, "the besieged have drawn off. What's your purpose?"

"Just what I said."

"But how can you compel it?"

"You shall never leave the cabin alive unless this paper is signed."

"And this paper?"

Acton read rapidly: "I, Conrad von Malstern, had the Van Gueldres' jewels carried off. I abducted Theodore Acton, to dishonor and disgrace him by making it seem that he was a thief."

"Anything else?"

"Yes, you must give orders that the yacht touch at the nearest port."

"Is that all?"

"For the moment, yes."

"Well, I refuse to sign your document. It could serve no purpose. You are already published over the United States as the thief. Even with the actual facts in their possession the Van Gueldres would never consent to have you for a son-in-law. Miss Van Gueldres, it is needless to say, would not dream of taking a tarnished name when she can have the best for a mere nod."

Acton seated himself with studied deliberation upon the stool nearest him, keeping the revolver in threatening evidence. When the count came to an end of his argument Acton looked him in the eye and retorted coldly:

"I don't choose to discuss my personal affairs with a person of your sort."

For the first time in all this grotesquely atrocious comedy the count gave signs of feeling, anger even. He paled horribly, clinched the long, slender fingers of both hands together for all the world as if there had been a throat between them. He seemed about to make a movement, but the ready pistol and the alert figure of Acton were too much to grapple with. He turned toward the porthole and said not a word. Acton began to see the difficulty of his plight even under the vantage he had gained. The man evidently possessed determination and must know that he (Acton) would be incapable of shooting him in cold blood. The combat then simply resolved itself into a question of physical endurance. There Acton had the advantage immeasurably. He was younger than his abductor, a trained athlete, had the stamina that comes from a life free from excesses, while the count, a voluptuary and effeminate, could resist neither hunger nor sleep.

It had gradually been growing into conviction in Acton's mind that the wretch before him was a madman. Nothing else could account for the unparalleled audacity of the villainy he had undertaken.

Acton began to grow faint from hunger, for the midday meal was just begun. His lips and throat were parched, for the sea air of itself induced thirst. It would be ridiculous, however, he reflected, to propose summoning food. It was probably this very thing the count was calculating on to restore him the mastery.

Hours passed, the count turning now and then and, seeing the pistol threatening, resumed again his staring through the window. Darkness began to make itself visible through the tiny portholes.

Then Acton realized the difficulty of his plight. There were no lights in the cabin. He had been allowed none since his imprisonment. Was the madman counting on darkness to relieve him of his plight? Obviously that explained the extraordinary silence of the long afternoon. He racked his whirling brain for a resource. The best he could think of was to bind his prisoner and thus secure some sleep.

He spoke up suddenly, rising at the same time:

"I shall be obliged to bind your arms."

He couldn't bring his tongue to give the monster a name.

"I see no need of that," Malstern retorted mockingly. "I've given you no trouble so far in your self imposed heroics. I shall give you none. I give you my word of honor—I"—

"Honor! Your word of honor?" Acton echoed scornfully. "Who do you suppose would credit such a creature as you?"

"Take care, young gentleman. This is the second time you have given such an affront as our house never endures. It is true that you are desperate; that your reason is unbalanced—that is the plea you Americans make use of when you rob and forage and what not. But, though I am resolved to be patient with you, indulgent, our blood is unruly when such words, even from madness, strike us. I repeat that you need have no apprehension of any effort on my part to bring this ridiculous scene to an end."

As the count spoke the window behind him had suddenly darkened—a crash followed. The count sank to the floor, and the deafening report of a pistol made the cabin seem the crater of a dynamite mine. Simultaneously with the crash Acton felt what seemed a hot wire under his ribs. He tried to raise his pistol, but his fingers refused to move. Giddy, in a total collapse of his faculties, he slid full length upon the floor.

* * * * * * * *

Curiously enough, the shot was his salvation. Brinton Flint had easily traced the yacht and was upon her route within twenty-four hours of his return to New York. She had cleared Barbados, and he overhauled her in British waters near Nassau. To his challenge the commander made no hesitation in acknowledging the yacht and its owner. Once on board, however, Flint's object was defeated by the declaration that Count von Malstern had debarked at Nassau. To all questions regarding Acton the official only stared. He had never heard of any such person. Now, it was just at dusk and Flint was actually retreating down the ladder when a crash in the cabin alongside shook the light vessel. He could discern a gang hatch hanging over the side just in the rear of him and a man holding a smoking pistol in his hand. The incident was too unusual to pass by, even for a stranger. He instantly suspected that he had been deceived by the commander. His own yacht was well manned. He hastily confided his suspicions to the lieutenant with him and again mounted to the deck.

The excitement below was absorbing the crew, and Flint reached the cabin gangway unnoticed. The first person he recognized standing in an open door was the count. His impulse was to accost him at once and display the warrant for his arrest. But aside from the fact that the yacht was in British waters and the warrant was not issued from a British court it was essential to find out first if Acton were on the vessel.

"Carry him to the mate's room," the count ordered in response to a question asked from within. While he spoke a man's head emerged from the door, the shoulders borne by two of the crew. One glance was enough. Flint flung himself at the German with a passionate cry:

"Have you added murder to theft, you infernal villain?"

Malstern started this time. His exasperating repose turned to a sort of maniac ferocity. He glared in the uncertain light at the lawyer, then roared in German:

"Tie me this criminal, hands and feet. Stick him in the hold and then I'll tell you what to do with him."

"The first man that tries will get a bullet in his skin," cried Flint, who understood German perfectly. "Furthermore, I forbid any man here to obey this fellow. He is a malefactor. Here is the warrant for his arrest. Let any man dare molest me!"

But even as he held the folded paper where the broad seal of the court could be seen glistening, the infuriated count shot at the lawyer's upraised arm, seized the paper and tore it into fragments.

"Do you hear me?" he vociferated. "Bind me this swine. Hurl him into the hold."

The half panic stricken group edged uneasily toward the lawyer—those on the gangway trying to retreat, those who had come to the cabin crowding behind the count. They were blocked by Acton, who had been dropped to the floor when the altercation began. Flint, heedless of the momentary awkwardness, shoved the men back and attempted to reach his friend.

"Must I perform the work myself?" the count roared, his eyes aflame.

"Here we are, Flint. What's up?" came a voice from the gangway above.

"Bring down a half dozen men. There's a madman here," Flint called out, bracing his back against the stanchion.

Malstern glared at his shrinking men, ferocity in his eye, but with the best will they could do nothing. The gangway was barely wide enough for two by close squeezing. Under such conditions a fight was out of the question. Furthermore the big seal of the court had done its work effectually. The German lower ranks are superstitiously terrorized by the symbols of authority. Malstern evidently realized the futility of a contest and, glancing backward, sprang over the prostrate body of Acton, thrust him out of the cabin, and closed the door.

"That's all right," Flint cried, rushing to Acton, whom he began to lift. But the wounded man groaned so piteously that he laid him back to wait assistance.

That substantially ended the affair. Flint, though he really had no legal authorization, commanded the yacht back to New York. His first care was for Acton, whom the surgeon pronounced in grave danger. The bullet had entered between the third and fourth ribs and made the lower one a sort of a viaduct to carry itself half around the chest.

Meanwhile food was ordered served to Malstern, but he refused to answer to the repeated attempts of the stewards. Finally, after twenty-four hours, Flint grew suspicious. The door was broken open. The count lay peacefully in the bed, stone dead. The postmortem revealed poison in the blood, but none in the stomach. Flint examined the count's hand. The ancestral opal shone out in ghastly vividness. It had rescued the last of the evil race from the disgrace of a felon's cell. In consequence of the count's death no proceedings were instigated. Teddy's condition, when his friends were permitted to see him, corroborated the statement made when the wedding was postponed, and no hint of the momentous drama, involving the serenest circles of the metropolis, ever got beyond the most intimate friends of the family.

In the Stilly Night.

The chemist's night bell rung furiously, and, with a much ruffled temper, the worthy dispenser dressed and opened his shop door.

"I want a bottle of soda water, please," said the complacent individual who stood without.

For a moment Mr. Squills was inclined to be personal, but then he reflected that, since he had come down, he might as well do business.

"Sixpence, please," he said. "Twopence will be allowed on the bottle when returned."

Then he went back to bed.

Two hours later he was awakened by another ring. Again he descended, to find the same complacent customer at the door.

"Here's your bottle," he remarked. "Gimme my tuppence!"

He got it, but the chemist's remarks anent some people's impudence were really unprofessional. — London Telegraph.

The Squirrel Monkey.

The red backed teetee, or squirrel monkey, is by far the most beautiful in form and color of all the North American monkeys, as well as being an interesting pet in captivity. The length of the head and body is about twelve inches, and the tail is about the same length. In color the whole skullcap is black. The ears, face, neck and throat are white. The back is reddish brown. The sides of the body, forearms, hands and feet are ocher yellow, and the arms, thighs and upper two-thirds of the tail are olive and gray. ONE HUNDRED DEAD.

Search Confirms the Awfulness of Colorado Train Wreck.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 9.—Because of the railroad horror which cost 100 or more lives many business houses are closed and more than forty homes are in mourning. Several persons have lost their minds, following the shock of the deaths of loved ones.

Fountain river, into which nearly all the dead bodies were washed, has fallen nearly to its normal stage, and the work of rescue will be made easier, although it is still dangerous, owing to the quicksand. Bodies have been recovered more than ten miles from the scene of the disaster.

The death list as compiled from the best obtainable sources of information shows a total of sixty-six identified dead, a total of twenty-eight missing and six unidentified bodies, making an even 100 victims of the wreck.

Many of the bodies have been removed from the morgues to their former places of abode and preparations for burial have begun. Hundreds of people are still passing through the morgues, some prompted by morbid curiosity alone, others seeking to identify bodies.

Pueblo's Death Loss Sixty-five.

The death loss of Pueblo alone reaches sixty-five lives, with forty identifications already made.

At the scene of the wreck everything is practically unchanged. The chair car, turned completely over, has settled in the quicksand until only the wheels are now visible and has resisted all efforts to right it or gain an entrance into what is thought to have been a trap in which may be found several bodies.

Mayor Brown issued a proclamation calling a public meeting to start an organized movement toward patrolling the Fountain and Arkansas rivers in the hope of finding more bodies of the victims of the wreck. Hundreds of men responded promptly, and the work was taken up under the direction of able officials, assisted by willing workers.

The railroad situation has materially improved, traffic being resumed over the Rio Grande tracks.

BASE BALL SCHEDULE.

Some of the Games That Towanda Has Arranged.

Just because Towanda had an off day on Monday—and so did Father Mathew for that matter—it does not mean that Towanda is not going to play ball the rest of the season. On Thursday of this week the Binghamton Press team will be here for a game. On Saturday of this week Towanda goes to Wyalusing where a match game has been arranged between Towanda and Tunkhanock.

On Tuesday Towanda will journey to Elmira and will try to win out the final game of the series of three games with the Father Mathew team. The latter team will have to play better ball than they did here on Monday to win next Tuesday for Towanda will be doing business. On Thursday and Friday Aug. 18 and 19 Towanda will cross bats with the crack Austin team during the firemen's convention. On Sept. 6 a game has been arranged to be played here with the Williamsport Tri-State league team. Some time in September the Cuban Giants play another game.

Shay to "Try Out."

Shay, the crack first baseman of the Towanda base ball team, left Tuesday night for Philadelphia where he will be given a try out on the Philadelphia National team. Without wishing Mr. Shay any bad luck he has a great many admirers in Towanda who would not cry if the Nationals would decide that Towanda needed him more than they did. Shay has been a great prop to the Towanda team and has made a fine record at the bat and in the first base position. He is a ballplayer and a gentleman and Towanda wants him.

North Towanda vs. Overshot.

A very exciting game of ball was played at North Towanda on Saturday between that place and Overshot. H. Hemenway and Lace and Lawrence Hemenway did the work for Overshot and C. and R. Brague for North Towanda, Tom Horton of New York umpired the game. Score by innings:

Overshot	1	0	0	0	6	0	2	0	3	—12
North Towanda	1	2	1	1	4	1	2	0	0	—12

INSTITUTE FALL TERM.

Principal Stiles Making Preparations for New Year.

The fall term of the Susquehanna Collegiate Institute will begin on Monday, September 12, and Principal Stiles is making all the necessary preparations for a successful school the coming year. Two new teachers have been engaged. Earl R. Lavers the new assistant, is a graduate of Lafayette college. He is a son of the principal of one of the Easton schools and comes with high recommendations as a scholar and for athletic ability.

Miss Fanny D. Oakman is another new instructor. She will have the position of lady assistant and is eminently well fitted for the place. She is a graduate of Smith college and comes with the best credentials as to scholarship and character.

The Susquehanna Collegiate Institute is a school that has advantages possessed by few institutions for educating those who wish to take up special work or who by reason of the lack of time have to cover a number of subjects in a few terms by hard work. It fits for business teaching or preparation for college and Bradford county students need not go outside the county for their instruction along academy lines.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.

Negro Thomas Dangerfield of Sayre Again in Trouble.

Thomas Dangerfield, who lives in the Cove near Sayre, is now a prisoner in the county jail. He was arrested at Sayre on Monday on the charge of stealing $28 from the market of L. P. Wooster of Sayre, who left the market for a minute and when he came back found his pocketbook gone. Dangerfield was seen going into the building and he has been in more or less trouble ever since he has lived at Sayre.

When Dangerfield was arrested he denied having any money at all but a thorough search revealed $28 in a roll of bills in his socks the exact amount that Wooster had been robbed of. Dangerfield will have to explain to the next court how he got the money.

Found 50,000 Old Pennies.

An old nail keg was recently unearthed in one of our western cities by workmen engaged in tearing down an old building. Upon opening it they became very much elated as it was full of pennies, but their joy was soon turned to disappointment for on closer examination they were found to be commercial pennies, used during the war, and of no value, whatever. The above has also been the experience of sickly men and women who were deceived into trying various remedies to restore them to health, but because they contained no merit were sadly disappointed. Not so, however, with those who selected Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to cure them of belching, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, or malaria, fever and ague, for today they enjoy perfect heath. A trial will convince you, too.

ANOTHER LUZERNE COUNTY BALL TEAM TROUNCED.

Locals Did the Luzerne Reds Up Brown on Thursday Afternoon.

Another Luzerne county ball team, and one of the best in that region, the Luzerne Reds, met their Waterloo Thursday afternoon at the hands of the Towanda team. It was a close and interesting contest from the start, filled with close plays, the resulting score of 3 to 1 proving highly satisfactory to the locals.

Towanda's scores were made in the fourth, six and eighth innings, one each. The first notch was cut thusly; Putnam got to first on a hit to third, but was caught at second; M. Madigan reached the initial sack on an error of second baseman. Then Kline pasted out a long one that the Luzerne left fielder failed to hold, scoring Madigan and reaching second. Staub flied and Lynch was outed at first.

In the sixth Shay hit for one sack to right; Putnam hit though center; M. Madigan got to first, but Putnam was outed at second; Kline failed to reach first; then Staub got first on fumble and Shay scored. Lynch fanned.

The third tally was made in the eighth by Kline, who hit for three sacks into right field; Staub followed with hit over shortstop's head, scoring Kline. Lynch flied to center and Staub was caught at first in a double play.

The Red's solitary mark was won in the third. Seal fanned; House got first on four bad ones; Williams flied out to left; Mack then put one to the left for two bags, scoring House. Mayock went out to pitcher and first. The balance was a blank.

Twenty-five of the 27 putouts by Towanda were credited to Russell and Shay. A fine feature of the game was the quick and lightning like throws across the diamond by M. Madigan from third territory to first, and Shay's elegant receipt of the same.

TOWANDA PUT IT ALL OVER THE FAMOUS TRITONS.

Dereated Them on Their Own Grounds by a Score of 11 to 1.

Towanda simply smothered the Triton base ball team at Tunkhannock on Saturday afternoon by a score of 11 to 1. Newberry, thecrack Lafayette twirler, was in the box for the Tritons and was made to look like a green freshman. Towanda banged his delivery for a total of 15 base hits. Andrews, the Indian, pitched a fine game for Towanda and besides not allowing a man to walk and striking out four men he made three hits off Newberry. Every man on the Towanda team got at least one hit.

The slaughter of Newberry came in the third inning when Towanda made six runs on seven hits and in the sixth when a total of four runs was made from two two-baggers and two singles.

PLEASE PASS THE TEAR BUCKET—TOWANDA WEEPS.

Comedy of Errors and Father Mathew Wins 13 to 8.

How did it happen? Well, Towanda lumped up all the errors that she hasn't made this season and there was a grand whirligig of incomprehensible misunderstanding and when Old Sol beat on the faces of the 650 paid admission wending their way home Father Mathew had 13 scalps on her belt and Towanda only had eight.

The notes of the sporting editor were so bleared with marks that it is impossible to tell just how all those runs were made by Elmira. Nobody wants to know anyway, but the tabulated score and the score by innings will tell who did and who didn't. Cotter opened in the first by hitting Hazen and Hazen scored on Wilbur's hit in the first. Rice scored in the second. Hazen drew a base on balls and he and Curtis scored in the third. Two came in the fifth and in the sixth please bring the tear bucket—Elmira got five on five hits and poor throws in fielding the ball.

Two came in the seventh. Andrews the Indian, went in in the eighth and with the finest support of the entire game blanked the Temperance boys, J. Madigan and Staub doing some of the best fielding seen on the diamond this year. One that J. Madigan caught was just off the ground and "Old Compound" made himself solid with the crowd who wanted something to cheer all through the game. But Elmira had made 13.

Towanda got one in the third, Shay scoring on the juggle of Putnam's hit. Staub scored in the fourth after he had made a two-bagger and Lynch had followed suit. Putnam scored in the fifth on Kline's hit. Towanda got four in the sixth. Elmira taking a glorious turn at the error column and Towanda touching Mack up for a single by Shay and a two-bagger by J. Madigan. Lynch scored in the seventh on J. Madigan's hit. Amen and Amen. Score 13 to 8. Nothing doing. Umpire Eugene Means had his hands full and time of game was two hours too long.

Cotter fanned seven gave two bases on balls and hit three men. Elmira made 13 hits off him. Mack for Elmira fanned nine gave two bases on balls and allowed 16 hits off his delivery. The summary gives Towanda and Elmira each three earned runs; Lynch, had one two-bagger and J. Madigan two. Father Mathew had three two-baggers, Rice, Wilbur and Biehl making them. Staub made a three-bagger for Towanda. Russel had two passed balls. Towanda had nine left on bases and Father Mathew seven.

Towanda Athletics, 4 Ulster, 3.

The Towanda Athletics and the Ulster teams played a great game of ball at the East Side grounds on Saturday afternoon which the Towanda second team won in the ninth inning by batting out two runs. The final score was 4 to 3. Ulster led until that inning by a score of 3 to 2, making two runs in the first by loose playing by the Athletics. They made one more in the seventh.

The features of the game were a double play by Towanda, Morrison's throwing to second for Ulster and Rockwell's running catch. Johnson pitched a fine game for Ulster but allowed an expensive base on balls in the ninth inning which filled the bases. Hoyt Tracy and Tom Kililea were the battery for Towanda. Tracy struck out eight batsmen and allowed four bases on balls while Johnson fanned nine and allowed two bases. John Cotter, pitcher of the Towanda team, umpired the game in a very satisfactory manner to both sides.

Score by innings:

Athletics	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	2—4

FINDINGS NOT KEEPINGS.

Man Arrested at Binghamton for Finding Pocketbook.

If you find a pocketbook on the street and fail to hunt up the owner and return it, you are liable to arrest. It does not matter whether you lose the pocketbook within a few minutes of the time you find it.

John Waltman, a few days ago, found a pocketbook on Chenango street at Binghamton. He placed the book in his pocket without looking inside of it, and he says that he lost it soon afterwards.

Waltman was arrested later for grand larceny in the second degree by Detective Stephenson. When arraigned in Police court that afternoon he was held in the sum of $500 for examination on the charge, to which he pleaded not guilty.

Clarence H. Nelson lost the book originally, and he says that there were $78 in at at the time. It is the theory of the complaint and the police that Waltman knows where the book and the contents went to.

A Great and Good School.

We have just received the catalog of the Literary Institute and State Normal school at Bloomsburg, Pa. and have been greatly interested in its contents. We note that emphasis is first laid on the preparation of young people for the profession of teaching. (See pages 8 and 9. Also pages 12 to 24 inclusive.) A practice school is maintained in which those preparing to teach, have daily experience under the supervision of critic teachers in all the branches of the public school curriculum. At the same time, instruction in Academic Studies is given by College and University trained specialists, so that thorough scholarship as well as rare skill in teaching is acquired.

Commercial courses (pages 15 and 28,) Music courses (pages 11, 29, 39,) and courses preparing for the various Coleges, including the Medical Colleges are also maintained. (pages 10, 24 to 27.) All this with the pupil under the best social and moral influences, makes the Bloomsburg school the best fitting school to be found anywhere. The catalog is interesting reading, giving as it does the means and methods of an up-to-date school. The marvel of it is, how such superior advantages can be offered at such low rates. Send for catalog. It is worth having whether you expect to attend or not. Address,

J. P. Welsh, Principal.
